Forecast for Monday 14 Jun 2021

Weather: Initially clear to begin with, but a band of cloud will begin moving across the park from the northwest mid-morning. This cloud may briefly bring the odd spot of light rain or drizzle, but will soon begin to break up into the early afternoon. Spells of sunshine will return, with conditions clearing more widely into the evening and overnight period.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 600m: 100% initially. This will fall to 40% in the northwest between 09:00 and 15:00, and fall to 60% elsewhere. Chances rising to 80% for the rest of the day.

Visibility: Cloud bases falling to 450-600m on northwest facing slopes and summits during the day. Visibility becoming very good later in the afternoon.
